Jo received a letter from a friend but cannot understand four of the words.
Use context clues from the text to uncover the meaning of the underlined words.

Dear Jo.

I can't tell you how amazing it is to have a new whatsit in my life. I could not believe how happy she looked when I my life. I could not believe how happy she looked when I took her home from the shelter. The last few days have took her home from the shelter, and lots of cuddles. been filled with endless joy, laughter, and lots of cuddles. This little one is so fodiddly, constantly getting into this little one is so fodiddly, constantly getting into always easy, our time together is incredibly rewarding. The sleepless nights and endless cleaning are all rewarding. The sleepless nights and endless cleaning are all worth it when you see one wag of her schmarnig.

The whatsit's playfulness is a constant source of yuglotment for me. Her energy and sweet nature make every moment for me. Her energy and sweet nature make every moment spent with her an absolute delight. Going to the park, spent with her owners, and learning more about whatsits has meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about whatsits he meeting other owners, and learning more about what the introduce you.
